MONTHLY COMMENTARY

Following the rise in yields in the first two months of the year, the global bond markets stabilised in March. The still resilient economic data did not cause yields to rise any further given the recent return to high expectations among market participants. Simultaneously, the US Federal Reserve (Fed) and the European Central Bank (ECB) essentially maintained their positions at their meetings in March. Despite the upward revision of growth expectations, the Fed's official quarterly forecasts still envisage three interest-rate cuts totalling 75 basis points (bps) this year. At the ECB, President Christine Lagarde and other speakers repeated the signals for a possible first interest-rate cut in June. Conversely, the Swiss central bank, SNB, caused a surprise by reducing its key interest rate earlier than expected (by 25 bps to 1.50%) – while on the other side of the world, as expected the Japanese central bank, BoJ, ended its negative interest-rate policy, which had been in place since 2016. Against this backdrop, yields on German Bunds fell slightly and US Treasuries changed little compared to the previous month. At the moment, it must be recognised that the economic environment in Europe is improving slightly and that there are signs of a bottoming out at a global level, particularly in the manufacturing industry. Over the past few months, this has been accompanied by a slight increase in inflationary pressure. It remains to be seen to what extent these trends will continue. For the time being, we have lowered the duration again slightly to make the portfolio a little less directional and are waiting to see how things develop. Despite the narrowing risk premiums, for example for corporate bonds, their allocation has been increased slightly – in combination with a changed mix and a focus on issuers with higher credit quality.

OPPORTUNITIES

- + Participate in global bond market growth.
- + Income can be generated from regular interest payments.
- + Active interest rate, currency and risk management (e.g. from the use of derivatives).

RISKS

- Country, credit and issuer liquidity risk. Also potential exchange rate risks. If securities are illiquid (i.e. thinly traded), there is a risk that it may either not be possible to sell the assets at all or only by accepting a significant discount on the sale price. ESG criteria can restrict the selection of target investments in terms of category and number, sometimes considerably.
- Investing in bonds may entail price risks, especially in case of rising interest rates on the capital markets.
- Where used, derivatives can have a greater negative impact on the fund value than would be the case if the assets were acquired directly. This can affect the fund's risk profile and volatility (tendency for the price to fluctuate).

Please read the Prospectus and particularly the RISK WARNINGS section and the specific annex of the subfund to understand the risks and benefits of this product.

INVESTOR PROFILE

CONSERVATIVE:

The fund is appropriate for conservative investors. Due to the composition of the net sub-fund assets, there is a moderate degree of risk but also a moderate degree of profit potential. The risks may consist in particular of currency risk, credit risk and price risk, as well as market interest rate risks.

INVESTMENT HORIZON:

Medium-term: 3 to 5 years

RISK INDICATOR

The risk indicator assumes you keep the product for 3 years. The actual risk can vary significantly if you cash in at an early stage and you may get back less. The summary risk indicator is a guide to the level of risk of this product compared to other products. It shows how likely it is that the product will lose money because of movements in the markets or because we are not able to pay you. We have classified this product as 2 out of 7, which is a low risk class. This rates the potential losses from future performance at a low level, and poor market conditions are very unlikely to impact our capacity to pay you.
