

Flossbach von Storch - Global Quality - CHF-I

INVESTMENT STRATEGY

Flossbach von Storch - Global Quality is a global equity fund with an active, focussed investment approach. The focus is on long-term holdings in companies (real value concept), not short-term speculation. We therefore focus on the quality of the company, which is determined by the strength and predictability of the expected earnings performance. We value a strong and sustainable competitive position, a healthy balance sheet, attractive target markets and management with integrity and competence. High-quality companies tend to have above-average returns on invested capital and strong resilience to adverse developments. All investment decisions are based on a sound assessment of quality and valuation. We understand risk as an economic dimension, i.e. the danger of a permanent loss of capital as opposed to short-term fluctuations. Other in-house valuation models include ESG issues, engagement, and voting. In addition, exclusion criteria defined within the framework of the Sub-Fund's investment policy are taken into account.

The Sub-Fund is actively managed. The portfolio is composed by the fund manager exclusively in accordance with the criteria defined in the investment policy, reviewed regularly and adjusted if necessary. The performance of the Sub-Fund is compared using the MSCI World Net Total Return Index as a benchmark. The fund manager is not linked to the index at any time when making investment decisions and the portfolio composition. Therefore, the performance of the Sub-Fund may differ significantly from the benchmark shown. The Sub-Fund is categorized as an Article 8 product under the Disclosure Regulation (EU) 2019/2088 (SFDR).

MONTHLY COMMENTARY

April was a rollercoaster ride on the stock markets. After US President Donald Trump imposed severe tariffs on virtually all of the country's major trading partners on the evening of 2 April – which he called 'Liberation Day' – both global equity markets and the US dollar went into freefall. In addition to the level of the tariffs, the idiosyncratic calculation method (and the sometimes contradictory communication in the days that followed) caused considerable uncertainty among companies and investors. The strong market reaction in the days that followed was reminiscent of the panic at the start of the Coronavirus pandemic in February/March 2020. In addition to the significant reaction of the currency and equity markets, the weakness of US Treasuries may also have prompted Trump to suspend most punitive tariffs above a base level of 10% for the time being and emphasise progress in negotiations with numerous countries. This brought about a turnaround on the equity market. The US S&P 500 equity index, which had fallen by more than 10% in the meantime, ended April with only a slight loss of 0.7%. The US dollar, conversely, remained weak throughout the month, losing 4.5% against the euro. This weighed negatively on performance for investors in the eurozone. The MSCI World global equity index, in which US equities account for around 70%, recorded a loss of 4.1% in euro terms in the month under review. The corporate reporting season was accordingly dominated by questions about the effects of the tariffs. Most of the companies in our portfolio have not yet seen any significant impact, but 'Liberation Day' was also after the end of the first quarter. Accordingly, almost all companies were less confident in their outlook for the rest of the year, and uncertainty has increased noticeably. We are also taking a wait-and-see approach to the further course of the trade war. It is clear that tariffs at the level originally announced would cause dramatic economic turmoil. However, it also seems likely that their overall level will ultimately be significantly reduced. For our portfolio companies, we are optimistic, at least in the event of more severe turmoil, that they will prove to be above average in terms of resilience. This is because our assessment of this resilience and adaptability plays an important role in our evaluation of company quality.

OPPORTUNITIES

- + These funds aim to exploit growth opportunities on global equity markets.
- + Investing in assets denominated in a foreign currency can have a positive impact on unit values as a result of exchange rate movements.
- + Derivatives can be used to increase potential yields.

RISKS

- Equity markets and thus also unit values can experience severe fluctuations in response to market developments. The result can be a fall in the trading price. ESG criteria can restrict the selection of target investments in terms of category and number, sometimes considerably.
- Investing in assets denominated in a foreign currency can have a negative impact on unit values as a result of exchange rate movements.
- Where used, derivatives can have a greater negative impact on the fund value than would be the case if the assets were acquired directly. This can affect the fund’s risk profile and volatility (tendency for the price to fluctuate).

Please read the Prospectus and particularly the RISK WARNINGS section and the specific annex of the subfund to understand the risks and benefits of this product.
